FAQs

1. What is the difference between the DSM-5 and ICD-11? While both classify mental disorders, they differ in their diagnostic criteria organization and specific terminology. The DSM-5 is primarily used in the United States, while the ICD-11 is used internationally and by many healthcare systems globally.
2. Is it possible to recover from a severe mental illness? Yes, recovery is possible for many severe mental illnesses. While complete remission may not always be achievable, significant improvement in symptoms and functioning is often possible with appropriate treatment and support.
3. How can I find a qualified mental health professional? You can contact your primary care physician for a referral search, online directories of mental health professionals, or contact your health insurance provider for a list of covered providers.
4. Are all mental health treatments equally effective? No. The effectiveness of different treatments varies depending on the specific disorder, individual characteristics, and the therapist's skill. Evidence-based treatments have demonstrated greater effectiveness than others.
5. What role does stigma play in seeking help for mental health issues? Stigma remains a significant barrier to seeking help. Misunderstandings and prejudice surrounding mental illness can discourage individuals from seeking professional help, leading to delayed treatment and poorer outcomes. Efforts to reduce stigma through education and advocacy are crucial.
